

Trucks are busy unloading freight at a commercial city market. The Coastal Express Trailer backs into a loading bay, while a warehouse foreman requests a bill of lading from another truck driver. Photo by Dave Frary

Many city lots have small patches of vegetation hidden behind buildings. Here you can see a small garden fenced off from the street.

This highly detailed road gang digging up a side street is an "island of detail." The streets on each side of it are sparsely detailed with a few people and a parked car or two.